SUBJECT: 2012-2013 INFLUENZA SEASON

This is to inform you of the activities planned by the LAC Department of Public Health (DPH) for the upcoming 2012-13 influenza (flu) season.

Influenza Vaccine Availability and Distribution in LAC for 2012-13 Flu Season

For the 2012-13 flu vaccination season, DPH has been allocated 90,000 flu vaccine doses from the California Department of Public Health (CDPH) which will ensure the availability of adequate doses for use during this fall's flu vaccination campaign.

Flu vaccine will be distributed to Community Health Services (CHS) and to a select group of strategically located Non-Profit Community Clinic Partners (NP-CCPs) that have historically demonstrated the ability to vaccinate large numbers of individuals. These partners are considered strategic relative to their various geographic locations as well as the volume of adults served. The vaccine will be provided to CHS and NP-CCPs in early October (based on availability) in order to allow vaccination activities to be initiated during the time of peak community demand.

- CHS will receive 36,700 doses of flu vaccine to support in-house vaccination activities at the District Health Centers and to support a limited number (approximately 80) of community out-reach clinics targeting various populations in each Service Planning Area (SPA).
- NP-CCPs will receive 53,700 doses of flu vaccine to vaccinate their adult clients through in-house vaccination activities and limited out-reach events.

Limited amounts of flu vaccine will become available in late November, for NP-CCPs who request additional vaccine, from portions of unused vaccine that are returned by CHS or expected not to be used by other providers.

2012-2013 Seasonal Flu Vaccine

Individuals who received the flu vaccine in the 2011-12 flu season will not be protected against the three virus strains in this season's flu vaccine and therefore are recommended to receive a flu vaccination again this year as in every year.

For the 2012-13 flu season, the flu vaccine contains three strains, the H1N1 strain which is the same that was included in the 2011-2012 vaccine, and two new strains that were identified in other parts of the world earlier in the year and are therefore included in the flu vaccine for the current season .

DPH Vaccination Outreach

For the 2012-13 flu season, DPH will conduct approximately 100 flu vaccination outreach clinics in addition to the usual flu clinics held at DPH clinics throughout the flu season (see attached list of clinics by Supervisory District). The Emergency Preparedness & Response Program will also be conducting two Point of Distribution (POD) vaccination exercises, at which approximately 1,500 doses of flu vaccine are anticipated to be given.

In a typical flu season, DPH administers less than 6% of all flu vaccine doses received by Los Angeles County residents. As in years past, DPH has encouraged private providers, Vaccines for Children (VFC) Program providers, and community partners to order vaccine and immunize their client base this flu season.

To prepare our partners for the upcoming flu season, DPH has engaged in conducting educational outreach and in-service events throughout Los Angeles County targeting medical providers, community groups, and schools to inform them about the flu vaccine recommendations and other useful technical assistance.

Vaccination Information Resources

Throughout the 2012-13 flu season, DPH's website (www.publichealth.lacounty.gov) will contain information for residents on where to go to receive the flu vaccine. An application on the website will direct individuals to the clinic nearest them by ZIP code, address or date. In addition, DPH's flu outreach schedule will be posted in PDF format so individuals can find a flu clinic by date, City, or Supervisorial District. DPH is working with the Los Angeles County Information Line "211" to provide them with updated information to refer callers to providers and community sites that offer immunizations at no-charge or at a reduced-charge. Educational materials for parents and providers will also be made available on DPH's website and on the California Department of Public Health's websites (www.getimmunizedca.org as well as <http://eziz.org>).

If you have any questions or need additional information, please let me know.
